

Bigfoot in California

Friday, 07 December 2007

A San Juan Capistrano man is trying to find Bigfoot in California, and he is hoping some amateur researchers can help him. Matt Moneymaker is betting a lot that he will be the person who finds bigfoot. If he is right he will be the man that found bigfoot. If not, he will be ridiculed.

“What we’re doing we know is going to have a huge impact on society,” Moneymaker says.

“We’ve gotten so close so many times. When we get some clear, close-range footage of these things — things people have been told don’t exist — people will be shocked by what they look like.”
Read More about the mission to find Bigfoot...